 BONUS TRIPLE PUN ENDING! ***

ARE YOU A TRAIN SPOTTER?

1. When you see a train, do you...
A. Leap out of its way before it can run you over?
B. Write down its number in a spiral-bound notebook?
C. Eat it?

2. When on a railway platform, what do you wear?
A. Clothes?
B. A smelly green anorak?
C. A bright orange plastiskin made from Squabblebeast entrails?

3. What's the most exciting thing you've ever done?
A. Bought your first copy of OINK!
B. Spotted a train?
C. Roamed the thousand galaxies eating people?

CHECK YOUR SCORE HERE:

Mostly A's: You are a normal, well-adjusted person, with great taste in heroes.

Mostly B's: You are either a train spotter, or the most boring person in the world, or - probably - both.

Mostly C's: You are a hideous, terrifying, man-eating, planet-zapping monster from outer space - but, hey, at least you're not a train-spotter!

big rob gets his new orders

yes folks... i can now reveal that ex-american basketball player "big rob" has joined "new order" as their vocalist. a spokesman for the pop group said "being a spokesman for the pop group i would like to say the band felt it very demanding having to sing and play their instruments at the same time.... so the obvious solution seemed to be to sign up the first basketball player regardless of hairstyle" so .7foot 4-inch big rob got the fantastic job.

at last... the long lost l.p. by midge ure has turned up in the sock draw of mr and mrs "matching suit and bowtie" entitled "pass me my sword for my pantaloons" including the classic track "midge of kintyre" claims mr. matching suit' on listening to the tapes.... i suggested that it was mr. matching suit' himself putting on a silly scottish voice... to which he replied.... "hoots mon, i can't even play that there mcsynthesizer!"
